In June, 2013 an upgrade was performed on all classroom technology from Analog to digital. Along with this change came the replacement of touch panel systems within the rooms. Also there was a removal of the required code to turn on the system. Following is a set of screen shots to aid you in the navigation of the new control systems.

When you enter the room the screen will either be blank have the following message:

Once you have selected a device you will be presented with one of the following screens:

1) This screen will be presented if you choose either the PC or the document camera.

2) This screen will be presented if you have chosen the laptop. (Laptop connections (VGA and HDMI) are located in the top of the podium)

3) This screen will be presented if you have chosen the Blue Ray Player. These controls allow you to choose all the functions of the Blue Ray player
Don’t forget to power off the system when you are finished with your class. This is done by hitting the “System Off” button in the lower left hand corner and choosing yes on the following screen.
